

Do you need a Display Energy Certificate?

What is a Display Energy Certificate?

A Display Energy Certificate (DEC) is a document that shows the energy performance of a building based on actual energy consumption as recorded.

The DEC also shows the Asset Rating for the building on a scale of 0 to 150 using information from the Energy Performance Certificate (EPC).

The Operational Rating is shown on a scale from A to G, where A is the lowest CO₂ emissions (best) and G is the highest CO₂ emissions (worst).

The Operational Ratings for the current year and previous two years are displayed on your certificate; this provides information on whether the energy performance of the building is improving or not.

How do I get a DEC?

Firstly, an EPC is calculated from plans/drawings. Then, figures from the completed EPC, plus your utility bills are used to complete the DEC. Energist UK can complete all of these stages for you, including producing your DEC in a laminated A3 or A1 size, within 72 hours!

How quickly can I get my DEC?

Depending on the service you choose, we can supply a DEC within 14-21 days or if you need it urgently, our Fast-Track service is 72 hours!

How do I know if I need a DEC?

If you match any two of the following criteria you will require a DEC:

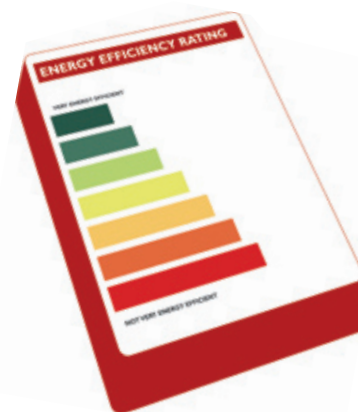

1. Total useful floor area over 1000m²
2. You are a public authority
3. The building is frequently visited by large numbers of members of the public

What is the difference between an EPC & DEC?

An Energy Performance Certificate calculates the carbon emissions of a specific building, whereas the DEC calculates the energy consumption/performance based on the actual utility bills.

Can I trust Energist?

Yes, absolutely! We promise to guide you through the process; to give you total attention; to make this as simple and straightforward as possible ... guaranteed!
